GOALS OF POL 374

- To review, analyze, and consider leading research and theoretical puzzles on foreign policy.
- To learn about the substance of the foreign policies of many countries from around the world in the present time period and recent past.
- To develop and sharpen analytical skills to use when confronting new foreign policy puzzles, whether working in government, working in the private sector in this era of globalization, developing cases and teaching materials to present to students of many ages, reading a newspaper, viewing a news program on television, or deliberating -- as an informed and active citizen -- about the direction of your country's foreign policy.

REQUIRED BOOK AND READINGS

All other readings are available on the course Blackboard site or through King Library electronic reserves.

STUDENT RESPONSIBILITIES

This is an upper-level political science course, thus students are expected to perform at an advanced level. Students are required to read and master articles from scholarly journals, be active and informed participants in class discussions, and complete three take-home, long essay exams. Much of class time will be spent discussing the readings and not in lecture. Students need to come to class prepared to talk about the assigned readings.

In this course, we will consider how foreign policy scholarship helps us understand contemporary world affairs. It is important that students become informed and stay informed about what is happening in the world. Students should read a national news source every day and tune your radio to WMUB (88.5 FM) every morning to listen to Morning Edition or every afternoon to listen to All Things Considered from National Public Radio.

Pop quizzes will be used in this course to encourage students to complete the reading assignments on schedule.

Pop quiz grades will be computed into the exam grade for the relevant section of the course. Each quiz will count 5% of the exam grade.
Exams.

There will be three exams in this course. Each is a take-home, long-form, problem-solving essay exam that will require extensive use and application of the course readings. In order to successfully complete and pass these exams, students will need to read the assignments – sometimes more than once. Students who miss class on any of the exam distribution dates will only be permitted to write the exam with full documentation of the absence. See Attendance Policy below.

- The first exam will be distributed on February 12 and due at the start of class on February 17.
- The second exam will be distributed on March 26 and due at the start of class on March 31.
- The third exam will be distributed on April 30 and due by 5:30 pm on Tuesday, May 5.

ATTENDANCE POLICY

Miami University requires that students attend all regularly-scheduled class sessions. The university attendance policy can be found in full at the following link: http://www.units.muohio.edu/secretary/policies_guidelines/student_handbook/academic_regulations/chapter9/index.html#toc194198528

The exception to Miami's full-attendance policy is as follows:

"There are no University-recognized excused absences except for religious observances that require absence from a class session and other required class activities. Students must give written notification to their instructor within the first two weeks of class of the religious event which prohibits class attendance, and the date that will be missed, if officially known. Instructors will, without prejudice, provide such students with reasonable accommodations for completing missed work. However, the students are ultimately responsible for material covered in class, regardless of whether the student is absent or present." Student Handbook 2008-2009, Part 1: Undergraduate Academic Regulations, Chapter 1.9.A. General Attendance Policies.

Beyond this, the following attendance policy will be used in this course:

- Students who are 10 minutes late for class will be marked absent for that class meeting.
- Students who leave before the end of class without prior permission of instructor will be marked absent for that class meeting.
- Upon the third unexcused absence, the student's final grade will be reduced one full letter grade.
- Upon the fourth unexcused absence, the student will be dropped from the course with a grade of F.

The instructor retains the sole right to determine what is or is not an excused absence. Early spring break departures and late spring break returns to campus will not qualify as excusable absences.

especially on matters regarding academic honesty and respect for other members of the class and university community.
